management of the Mass mine is taking hold of its work with great vigor and there is an excellent prospect of the mine becoming a large producer within a short time. The Mass has been considered for many years by miners as the richest mine in the Lake district, and the only question about the future of the property has been whether a sufficient amount of the high grade ground could be opened to permit the working of the mine on a large scale. This seems answered in the affirmative, judging from the recent developments at the property. Some heavy new machinery is on the ground and will be started by May 1. This includes a powerful Fraser & Chalimers hoist, good for six-ton loads to a depth of one-half mile, and a 50-drill Rand air compressor. At the two new shafts on the Knowlton lode there are Nordberg hoists and work will soon be resumed. Capt. R. R. Trezona, the retiring mining captain, estimates the mine capable of furnishing 700 tons of selected stamp rock daily, while Capt. James Wilcox, who has just taken charge, is more conservative, but thinks the mine good for 500 tons daily. This will feed one stamp, which will soon be set at work in the new mill. It is Capt. Wilcox's intention to get out rock that will return an average of about The conservative and the consists of thirty-four claims.

The intentions of the management of the Champion mine are pretty clearly shown by the letting of contracts for the building of fifty-two new houses for employees. Baltie mine on Monday of this week will hamper production for a few weeks, as No. 3 s the principal producer at the mine, but the machinery was only slightly damaged and the net loss will be small.

Disappointment is felt over the March production of the Franklin, which was much smaller than had been hoped. The local management believes a better product will be secured as soon as the conglomerate shafts at the Franklin Junior are in com-sale of the old Hancock mine, just west of the city of that name and to the southwest of the Quincy. This property was originally set aside by the Quincy company in 1859, the Quincy reserving the right to mine the lode on which that mine was opened, but transferring all other mineral rights to the Hancock company. Recent developments on the so-called "West Lode" in the Quincy and Franklin mines are decidedly favorable to the Hancock, and there is yet another amygdaloid, lying 112 feet west of the "West Lode," which is well charged with copper. In addition to its mineral possibilities the Hancock property is a highly valuable one for its surface realty alone, about thirty acres of its original 180 having been built over, the company retaining all mineral rights underneath the lots sold.

The Atlantic has contracted for a new fifty-drill air compressor, which is to be de-

The Mohawk mine now has in sight between surface and the second level about $400,000 worth of mehawkite ore, and taking into consideration the widening of the fissure noted on the third level there must be nearly equal value between the second and third levels. While it is unsafe to pin too much faith on fissure veins the chances are strongly favorable to the theory that this fissure vein will hold to the depth of at least a quarter of a mile, which would give millions in value and mostly net profits to this promising young mine.

Good progress is being made in the short and in the second in the second second

Good progress is being made in the preliminary work at the millistes of the Mohawk

The promoters of the Belt Consolidated have dropped the attempt, and it is now past history. The public refused to become interested to a sufficient extent to render the flotation advisable, as to attempt the recenstruction of the property without a substantial treasury fund would have been to invite disaster. The favorable showings now being made at the Mass and Adventure render it altogether probable that within a comparatively short time the Belt will be reopened, though by whom and under what conditions it is impossible to predict.

The Quincy is contemplating the installation of two new stamps to replace two of the clear stamps now running. Such a change would result in increased efficiency through a simultaneous lowering of stamping charges and an increase of production.

The Osceola is opening a new and promising mine in the South Kearsarge. This is at present a heavy charge on the parent company, as no expense is being spared in pushing development and equipment, but within eighteen months will begin returning the cash which is now being diverted from the treasury. The Adventure has contracted for two double-cone hoists, to raise six-ton loads. Construction of the new six-stamp mill of the Calumet and Hecla is proceeding satisfactorily. This mill is to treat the rock from the amygdaloid openings of the Calumet and Hecla company on the Oscola lode.

The Champion is erecting its new steel shafthouses. Underground work is well advanced throughout the mine.

Colorado smelter at Butte this week that netted $88.000 in gold. This is the most valuable carload of ore ever shipped from a mine in Montana. The ore was shipped from a mine in Montana. The ore was shipped from a mine at Iron Rod in Madison county by Dalher Brothers; it is from a new property that these young men had under lease. The royalty paid on the ore was $22.000.

A bond for $50,000 has been taken by Senator W A Clark and his son on eighty acres of mineral land adjoining the copper property in the suburbs of Helena, upon which they are sinking a shait. This property could have been purchased six months ago for $250. It was offered at Sheriff's sale at that time, and as the price bid on it was only $100 the court refused to confirm the sale. This bond was taken after sixty days' exploration of the copper lead which runs through this property.

The Heinzes, who are fighting the Amalgamated Copper Company in Butte, have bought another tract of forty acres lying just west of the Clark property. The Amalgamated Copper Company has a bond on a claim adjoining the Clark property to the south. The bond was taken six months ago, before it was known that there was any copper in this district, for $800. When the copper was discovered the payment on the bond was tendered to the owner and he declined to make the deed Suit was brought to compel specific performance of the contract, and this action is still pending. The Amalgamated Copper Company offered on Monday to settle the litigation by giving the owner $1,000 in cash and to take a bond on the property for $20,000. The investment of all these big copper syndicates in this district are the best index of the future of the new copper district. It looks as if the litigation that has cost so many millions about the Butte mines might be repeated in Helena.
